Nội dung bài nghe

East Meets West was started by humanitarian Le Ly Hayslip in 1988.

Her initial aim was to help heal the wounds of war between the United States and Viet Nam.

Since its foundation, East Meets West has become a non-governmental organisation with large-scale projects in Southeast Asia and South Asia.

Its programmes are mainly in the fields of healthcare, education, clean water and good hygiene, and aim at helping people in Asia have better lives.

In Viet Nam, East Meets West has launched the 'Inspire Sports' programme in Quang Tri Province to provide disabled people with opportunities to take part in sports with professional coaches and healthcare workers.

East Meets West is also working with Viet Nam Television on an international campaign called 'Life is Beautiful' to raise awareness about the issues that disabled people are facing in the country, to raise funds to support them, and to create a more positive attitude towards them.

East Meets West's programmes send the message that people with disabilities, despite their limitations, can overcome difficulties to achieve success in life.

In my opinion, these logos may be an international event called International Day of Persons with Disabilities. This special day is celebrated once a year. Its purpose is to further raise awareness of disability issues and to call for community's help for the people with disabilities and worldwide support for their rights and well-being.

Promoted by the United Nations, the International Day of Persons with Disabilities (originally called 'International Day of Disabled Persons') has been celebrated on December 3 since 1992. The aim is to further raise awareness of disability issues and to call for world-wide support for the rights and well-being of disabled people. Although this day has a different theme each year, its general theme is equal opportunities and full integration of people of disabilities in society.

The following are some recent themes:

Year	Theme
2010	Keeping the promise: Mainstreaming disability in the Millennium Development Goals towards 2015 and beyond
2011	Together for a better world for all: Including persons with disabilities in development
2012	Removing barriers to create an inclusive and accessible society for all
2013	Break barriers, open doors: for an inclusive society and development for all

According to WHO (World Health Organisation), at least one-tenth (1/10) of the world's population live with a disability. Many disabled people still face challenges, discrimination, poverty and limited access to education, employment and health care. The percentage of disabled children not attending school varies between 65 and 85 percent in some African countries. That is why it is important that people with disabilities receive the right support to perform the best they can. The way we think about disability has also changed. Disabled people are citizens like everyone else and have the same rights.
